

I am deeply concerned and upset about Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air "Stolen Honor", an anti-Kerry smear piece days before the election. This is an example of the very real dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. However, this large company which is controlling so many stations is acting in favor of what is good for its bottom line and not in favor of giving fair and balanced information to the people it serves.

This is a clear example of why we media ownership rules absolutely need to be strengthened, and why the license renewal process need to be reviewed.

Sincerely,

Lisa Housman
